Miss. Library Association Scholarship Fund

The financial report of the Mississippi Library Association Scholarship Fund, January 1 - May 5, 1959, is presented below:

Balance brought forward from 1958	$398.39
Receipts from Contributions January 1 - May 5, 1959	$ 29.00
Total 1959 Receipts	$ 29.00
TOTAL	$427.39
Expenditures:
Miss Linda Lancaster (Final 1958 Scholarship Payment)	$100.00
Total 1959 Expenditures	$100.00
TOTAL AVAILABLE FOR 1959 SCHOLARSHIP	$327.39

In commenting on this report, Treasurer Alan Skelton said, "Year after next is going to be rough!" President Jeanne Broach comments, "The enthusiasm of the members of the Association over the idea of giving a scholarship indicated that it would not be difficult to raise the money to do so each year. When the membership realizes that $300 of the total $627.39 which has been collected during the two years the scholarship has been in existence, was given by only two donors, it will be obvious that the rest of the membership will have to do better than $327.39 each two years if the scholarship is to be continued on an annual basis."

You can never have a greater or less dominion than that over yourself.

MLA Convention Plans

Registration for the MLA meeting in Jackson, Oct. 22-24 has been streamlined.

Ten days before convention time, MLA members will receive a letter containing room rates, a reservation card and a list of meals for which reservations will be necessary, with a place to indicate choices from the Heidelberg Hotel, convention headquarters. Sending in this information with a covering check, will eliminate much of the inevitable standing-in-line and will indicate expected attendance.

This year's program will observe MLA's 50th anniversary. Highlighting the evening program will be a buffet meeting Thursday and a banquet Friday.

Tentative speakers are: Dr. W. D. McCain, president, Miss. Southern College; Dr. J. S. Hartin, director of libraries, University of Miss.; Miss Pearl Sneed, librarian, Jackson Municipal Library; Dr. R. A. McLeMore, president, Mississippi College; Dr. S. A. Brasfield, director, division of Instruction, Miss. Department of Education; and John Kenneth Cameron, assistant chief, reader services, Air University Library, Montgomery, Alabama.

Mrs. Frances Neal Chaney, SELA vice-president and College and University Section chairman announced Forrest Palmer will edit a special issue of the Southeastern Librarian on problems of the small college library. Miss Swearingen will contribute an article on the Millsaps College library remodeling.

86th Congress Studies Bills Of Interest

Bills were presented in the 86th Congress relating to such diverse areas as depository libraries, surplus property and the Internal Revenue Code.

Of great importance to public libraries is H. R. 3667 which would grant public libraries the same benefits under the Internal Revenue Code that are available to colleges, universities and school libraries in regard to charitable contributions.

When the Code was revised in 1954, a new subsection was added to the section which relates to deductions allowed taxpayers, individuals as well as corporations, for contributions made to various charitable organizations. The section contains a general limitation on the taxpayers total contributions in a taxable year of 20% of the taxpayers adjusted gross income (gross income minus business expenses). The new subsection permits individual taxpayers (not corporations) an additional 10% of gross adjusted income (making the maximum 30%) if contributions are made to . . . educational institutions which maintain a regular faculty and normally have a regularly enrolled student body in attendance at the place where the educational activities are conducted. Public libraries are not included at the present time. Strong letters to members of the House Ways and Means Committee are essential.

Legislation to amend section 203 of the Federal Property and Administrative Service Act of 1949 to provide for the donation of surplus property to libraries has again been introduced. Letters to the Donable Property Subcommittee of the House Government Operations Committee are needed at this time.

Legislation was drafted, introduced by Representative Wayne Hays (D. Ohio), (H. R. 13140) and was passed by the House on June 25, 1958, too late for Senate action in the 85th Congress. Reintroduced in the 86th Congress as H. R. 519 and again passed by the House on March 16, the principal new provisions of the "Depository Library Act of 1959" are:

1. Each component of the Federal government shall furnish the Superintendent of Documents a list of its publications, except those required for official or strictly administrative use, which it issues outside the Government Printing Office. (Presently only those issued by the GPO are so listed).

2. These publications will be listed by the Superintendent of Documents and distributed by him to such depository libraries as select them. (Many of the documents issued outside the Government Printing Office are not now available through the depository system).

3. Additional depository libraries may be designated. The provision "that a total of not more than two such libraries, other than those specifically designated by law . . . may be designated within each area" would permit 515 new depositories to be created. (There are now approximately 570 depository libraries).

4. Regional depository libraries may be created. As many as two may be designated, although generally only one will be needed; in less populated areas one may serve two or more states. Such depositories shall agree to receive and retain at least one copy of all government publications, either in printed or microfacsimile form, and within the region served shall make its documents freely available on interlibrary loan and for reference service.

5. Only regional depository libraries must retain documents permanently. The other depositories may then dispose of government publications after five years. (Now all must retain the publications permanently unless given permission by the Superintendent of Documents to transfer or discard.)

6. The present requirement that libraries pay mailing costs on Federal publications received as depository libraries is removed.

The additional expense to the Federal Government of administering this legislation should be modest. Those who have studied the bill are of the opinion that in view of its contributions in the form of wider and more efficient distribution of government publications and its relief to depository libraries, the cost will be negligible.

Further information on any pending legislation may be had from your congressman, from the ALA Washington Office, the Mississippi Library Commission, or Miss Bettie Galyean, Northeast Regional Library, Corinth, Chairman of the Mississippi Federal Relations Committee.

The power of applying attention, steady and undissipated, to a single object, is the sure mark of a superior genius.

MISSISSIPPI LIBRARY NEWS

MLC

FROM THE DESK OF THE DIRECTOR

THE BAKER'S DOZEN

From one of the Mississippi Library Commission's youngest correspondents came a letter which read in part, and in spelling: "Please help us. We need a library two."

His letter has been answered for him and for 103,373 other Mississippians since January 1, 1959 not with "library two" but with "library thirteen."

Thirteen may be unlucky for the superstitious but it's very lucky for the intellectually curious since the thirteen new libraries provide books and other reading materials to citizens in nine of the towns for the very first time in attractive, colorful surroundings and in four of the towns in new and greatly improved quarters.

Where are these new libraries located? They are all over Mississippi from the rich black Delta lands on the river over to the red clay hills and on down into the dark green southern forests. People all over the state are interested in having library service where there is none or better service where necessity forced more penurious beginnings in other days. The thirteen new "retail outlets" range in size from the growing, prosperous city of Cleveland to the small, growing—and also prosperous—town of Seminary. They are in big counties and little ones—big ones like Bolivar and Hinds, small ones like Covington and Calhoun. They are in new industrial towns like Bruce and in old towns with the rich historical background of gracious living that is Rosedale.

Healthy, friendly and vigorous rivalry between towns joined forces with the modern availability concept of library service to result in 2 of the service centers being in Calhoun County, 5 in Bolivar and 3 in Covington. Already parts of thorough-going library systems, Pickens and Utica also belong to the "we want libraries as nice as school of activity. Of the thirteen new libraries only Water Valley is alone in a country and plans have been underway since the start for reading facilities in their neighboring towns of Oakland and Coffeeville. Next issue of MLN will undoubtedly see Yalobusha's library family grow to 3 and Bolivar County's to 8!

How are these libraries housed? Knowing that first emphasis in modern library service is on service and materials rather than on buildings, one could well ask: "What sort of quarters are these libraries in?" They range from the tiny converted filling station in Pickens to the 140 feet long store building in Cleveland. Three towns redecorated their city halls and made them beauty spots as well as reading centers: Merigold, Bruce and Shaw. The room in the courthouse which houses the library in Rosedale has been decorated in gay colors complete with new shelving, floor covering and furniture and adequate lighting. Downtown store buildings have placed the libraries among other merchandising enterprises in Collins, Shelby, Mt. Olive, Utica, Calhoun City and Seminary.

Cleveland

All more lofty motives for improving library quarters were augmented in Cleveland by a dare. While visiting the beautifully renovated town hall quarters of the Merigold Library, a citizen of Cleveland slipped up to Bolivar County Library Director Lepoint Smith and said: "I bet you'll never be able to make that building in Cleveland look as pretty as this." The staff of the new Bolivar County Library went to work on "that building." It was combined community effort that did it. Cleveland has claim to a library "first" since surely it is the first town to have a library equipped before it is built. It happened this way: The Woman's Club in Cleveland had worked for years for a new library. Sufficient funds were not forthcoming. Wanting library service without further delay, the club voted to provide the shelving. One day, not too long perhaps from now, when a new library is constructed, this top quality shelving will already be on hand. The cart before the horse? Perhaps so, but the horse is pushing rapidly and good ground is being covered. The dare? Well, the loser was very gracious about it; in fact, he denoted his labor and profit for the floor covering, thereby bringing about his own defeat on the wager.

Water Valley

It remained for Water Valley to come up with the "most" in library quarters. Coincidence had left the city with an abandoned fire station at the same time citizens were rallying interest in public library service. "Would that building do, if it were remodeled?" asked the town officials. Would it do? Right in the heart of town, on main street, with no restricting walls and an open front? Would it! So successful was the adaption to library purposes, so extensive was the remodeling, and so "just right" the decoration that it would take close examination to tell that it wasn't constructed for a modern public library in the first place.

The energetic, get-up-get-it-done Mayor Perkins of Water Valley called: "Is there any reason, Mrs. Currier, that the Western Union office cannot be in the library and the same person serve as telegrapher and librarian?" Not that we knew of, so a Mississippi library was off on a new approach to the problem of too little pay for a librarian and too short hours of service for the public. We do not know how the messages are getting through but the books are getting out.

Who supports these libraries and how? New libraries, must have strong foundations. Upon what are these built?

Bolivar County

The new units in Bolivar County are part of the countywide system inaugurated in October, 1958 by the Bolivar County Board of Supervisors. Arrangements with each town includes furnishing of quarters and utilities by the town officials, with the county funds taking care of the operation in regard to book stock, supervision, salaries, promotion and general services expense.

Covington County

When Covington County Board of Supervisors levied a one mill tax for participation in the Pine Forest Regional Library last October it was with the understanding that permanent service would be available in each of the three towns of Collins, Mt. Olive and Seminary. All three libraries were formally opened at one time and April 11 was really "library day" in Covington County. This was surely a "first", too, as a caravan of visitors drove from one town to the other to help the local people dedicate their new libraries. The Home Demonstration clubs of Covington County who had campaigned so successfully earlier for the inauguration of service played the role of hostess in each town and reading had a big day in Covington County. It has continued to have big days ever since as the circulation has exceeded all expectations and the shelves continue to empty faster than Regional Director Jean Lyon can get them filled.

Hinds County

Library service had been a standing order in Utica through the small station facilities in the city clerk's office (Mrs. R. V. Currie) and large space in the city clerk's heart since the beginning of the Hinds County Library. Utica townspeople asked more extensive facilities and the city officials promptly secured a downtown store location. On formal opening day, Utica was honored with a visit from Miss Evelyn Mullen, consultant with the U. S. Office of Education who is administering the funds from the Library Services Act.

Calhoun County

"We don't want any speeches about the value of library service; we already know that or we wouldn't be here. What we want from you is to tell us how to get a library." The Director of the Library Commission had her orders. Bruce had spoken. It was February—right in the middle of everybody's budget year. No local money; no state funds allocated specifically to that area. A check on the attendance at the Bruce meeting revealed that people were there from Calhoun City and they wanted a library, too. The only thing worse than one library without any money is two. But they began working and we began adding and scraping. It couldn't be done but together we did it, anyway. On April 19 Bruce had its formal opening; on May 3 Calhoun City had theirs. How? It all happened so fast and there was remarkable community spirit and cooperation from all sides as Calhoun County hurriedly erased itself from the list of counties without library service. Campaigning is already underway for a tax millage this fall to enter a regional library. A list of acknowledgments would almost be the census reports of the two communities headed by names such as June Murphee, the young newspaperwoman whose dream of library service for her county was stimulated by library training along with journalism at MSCW during her college days; school teachers like Mrs. Willis and Mrs. Adams who have first hand knowledge of the need for library service; industrialist W. R. Williams of the Calhoun Garment Company who donated the first year's rent on a building to house the Calhoun City unit; the power company who gave the beautiful light fixtures for Bruce; the interested citizens who agreed to serve on the Boards of Trustees and then proceeded to roll up their sleeves and assist Field Representative Vaughn in getting the service underway; the faithful volunteers who are operating the libraries without remuneration until there are sufficient funds for salaries; and fireball Mayor C. A. Riley of Bruce who journeyed over half of North Mississippi inspecting new libraries to make sure that Bruce's became as nice as any of them. It did.

How could all this happen in Mississippi?

Interested citizens, of course, are at the bottom of it all. Their efforts have been crowned with greater and more immediate success, however, by the substantial help which the Library Commission can give with the funds from the Library Services Act.

"You are starting out where it has taken us 15 years to get," is the way a visitor from Panola County summarized the impact of the Library Services Act as she rejoiced with Water Valley over the better days and remembered with many of us the leaner ones.

Greenwood Girl Wins State Science Fair

By

Linda Layne Williford
Greenwood High School

I was very glad when I was asked to write this article because it gives me the opportunity to express my deep appreciation to the National Association for the Advancement of Science Library I know that I speak for students all over the country who have used this invaluable collection of books. We all join in sincerely thanking the association.

On Monday, May 4th, I flew to Hartford, Conn., for one week, with all expenses paid to the 10th National Science Fair. There I represented the State of Mississippi. I could have not won this trip without the aid of the Science Library, which gave me the necessary information and inspiration to complete my science project, which is entitled Projectiles and the Moon.

I most wholeheartly urge everyone to take advantage of this wonderful store of knowledge in the Traveling High School Science Library. Become acquainted with the sparkling world of chemistry, the vast world of astronomy, and the promising world of atomic physics, in which lie the very secrets of creation. Learn about scientists, the benefactors of humanity, and doctors who battle with death itself. Learn to love science, which is a synonym for knowledge, the mother of wisdom, the gift of Solomon. Through the Traveling High School Science Library, strive to wonder, to ask, to learn, and most of all, to understand.

The whole of heraldry and chivalry is in courtesy . . . A man of fine manners shall pronounce your name with all the ornament that titles of nobility could add.

—Emerson

Teachers and students alike are enjoying using the Traveling Science Library at Leflore County High School, Itta Bena. This program, now in its fourth year, is administered by the American Association for the Advancement of Science at the request of the National Science Foundation which provides an annual grant for its support.

Bruce High School science instructor, Mrs. W. R. Hardy and her Science Club choosing books from the Traveling Science Library for special reports. Mrs. James R. Willis is librarian at Bruce High School. Not only science classes but other departments have used the books for book reports, term papers, speeches and fact questions. The selected list of career guidance materials have been used to guide students in choosing careers.

Planning and making projects for the Science Fair was made much easier through the Traveling Science Library at Picayune High School. Here students Robert McRaney, Diana Jo Bilbo, Nancy Davis, and Don McRaney make their selection for book reports. Not only have the science books been used extensively for scientific subjects but have proved valuable for book reports in English courses. Geraldine S. Jenkins is school librarian.

The lounge area of the new H. V. Cooper High School Library at Vicksburg displays the Traveling Science Library posters. Mrs. Annabelle Koonce Crowther, librarian, says that having such a collection enables her and other teachers to examine the books and decide which ones appeal to students before spending their money for them.

Libraries Wage "Wake Up and Read" Campaign

Projects ranging from coffees to counter-cards, from dedications to displays emphasized National Library Week in libraries throughout the state.

Throughout Mississippi extensive "Wake Up and Read" campaigns were waged in school, public, college and psecial libraries. Space does not permit a full report of all the activities but the scope of the statewide undertaking can be judged by mentioning a few.

New libraries were opened during National Library Week in Bruce, Collins, Mt. Olive and Seminary. At Tupelo dedication was held for a new library annex.

At Vicksburg an art exhibit was held in the Vicksburg Public Library. Over 100 paintings were represented from over 60 local artists. In Kosciusko adults and children displayed their hobbies in a special showing at the library. A flower show had been held just a few weeks previously.

Newton Public Library offered a collection of records for the blind received through the Louisiana State Library, Dept. for the blind. These "talking books" were made available for the first time. At Grenada County Library, too, "Talking Books" was the subject of an exhibit at the library and a talk before the Lions Club.

Many libraries held "Open House" and "Coffee Hours", during National Library Week. A few included: Durant, Crystal Springs, Hazlehurst, Macon, Brookhaven, Monticello and Philadelphia.

Throughout Mississippi librarians talked with newspaper reporters and told them of their activities and achievements in the local libraries.

Newspaper publicity, radio spot announcements, displays in downtown businesses and at churches, reminded people that it was indeed time to "Wake Up and Read".

At Picayune a minister gave a radio talk on "Library Aids in Christian Education". And at Macon, Sunflower, Brooksville, Booneville and elsewhere librarians talked before civic clubs.

In Meridian The Lauderdale Co. Women's Division of the Miss. Farm Bureau presented the library with three books for the Freedom Bookshelf.

Harriette Person Memorial Library at Port Gibson held a discussion group on "Nobel Prize" winners. Jackson Municipal Library presented "Wake Up and Read" bookmarks to its patrons. Copiah County

Delta State College held an "At Home" Tea in the library in recognition of National Library Week. At the left Alice Sullivan of Port Gibson and Arlas Dickson of Tippo study the process through which each library book must go before it is ready for distribution. This was one of several interesting exhibits. At right, Myrtle Vivian Abels, a junior majoring in Home Economics, examines photographs of fashions popular fifty years ago. This display in the library was part of the Art Department's exhibit in the current program leading up to Library Week.

Library at Hazlehurst began book service to hospital patients.

In all the colleges National Library Week was observed. M.S.C.W. library science students visited neighboring libraries in Macon and Brooksville. Delta State College featured exhibits of books from all departments of the college and held an "At Home" tea.

Elementary and high schools devoted much time to the observance of the Week. In Jackson, public school students made "Wake Up and Read" displays. Throughout the state students and teachers visited the libraries. At Sardis, seventh grade students held "open house" to exhibit Mississippians.

In most areas children's story hours and young people's discussion groups were held.

Special libraries, too, played an important role in "National Library Week" celebrations. Special displays, open houses, extra written and verbal publicity were the order of the day.

Efforts on the part of every Mississippi librarian made "Wake up and Read" a byword in Mississippi homes. As a result of this second National Library Week, Mississippi librarians can truly say they are doing their part to encourage a "Better-Read, Better-Informed" America.

PENNIES INVESTED NOW RETURN DOLLARS QUICKLY WHEN YOU BUY BOUND-TO-STAY-BOUND PREBOUND BOOKS

Your investment policy in books is as important as that of the banker who has the responsibility of conserving his customers' funds. Therefore, when buying books, the same realistic approach to economy and long term return must be used. This is the basic foundation on which the success of "Bound-to-Stay-Bound" Prebound Books has been built. Librarians who buy these books do so because they want greater circulation and lower cost per circulation. In this way, they preserve their collections and save acquisition time and money.

How this is accomplished is well told in our literature and catalogs available to you on receipt of your name and address. We urge you to write today.

About 20,000 popular juvenile titles of "Bound-to-Stay-Bound" Prebound Books are available — most in stock for immediate delivery.

Beaumont Public Library Is Flourishing

By

Mrs. Laura O. Payne, Librarian

Hello, from Beaumont Public Library, in Perry County, one of the Pine Forest Libraries. We are sending you two pictures, taken at our "Coffee Break" during National Library Week. The camera was too small to get the whole picture, but could only take small views.

The librarian is standing at corner of shelves, facing the camera in one picture and is looking down at desk in another, Mrs. Edward Mathis, library board member for this beat, is holding her granddaughter in her arms. Mrs. E. E. Davis is assisting in pouring coffee. Mr. Homer Boutwell, druggist, is drinking coffee, and seated at the desk, registering, is Mrs. James Howell. We had quite a crowd all afternoon, but did not have large camera.

As you see, our library is a part of the City Hall, the counter dividing it. 'Tis a lovely building, with neon lights and air-conditioning. We have about 350 signed members, and Book Circulation last month was 733, which is average. Our school is very cooperative, using our library as a supplement to theirs. During library week, Mrs. P. L. McIntosh, English teacher and school librarian, brought all the classes of High School over, and also the Library Club and Commercial Class.

Beaumont has about 1200 people, plenty

Northeast Regional Has Talking Books

The Northeast Regional Library has seven Talking Machines in operation and three more being sent; Tippah County will have five, Alcorn County three and Prentiss County two. Last fall one was secured for twins in Booneville; they were in the first grade but could not continue in school. With the Talking Book Machine they have been able to keep up with their grade. The Pilot Club of Corinth co-sponsors this project with the library.

industry, and the biggest payroll in Perry County. Also has street lights and garbage pick-up. Also, is proud of its library. And as librarian, I sincerely love the work, and here is a true story to prove it: A farmer asked a friend of mine if she thought I would serve on an Election on a certain day and she replied, "I don't know, that Library is her first love." He said, "Don't I know it. I've practically lost a crop because my children want to read all time."

Recent speakers at the federated clubs meeting in Evans Memorial Library, Aberdeen, were Mrs. Lura Currier (center), Director, Miss. Library Commission and Miss Evelyn Day Muller, (right), library extension specialist, U. S. Office of Education. With them is Miss Lucile Miller (left), director of the Tombigbee Regional Library.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Mrs. L. B. Broome, librarian at Shelby Memorial Library, Columbia, who died April 11.

First Regional Receives Real Estate Books

The Northwest Real Estate Association has presented two books to the First Regional Library. The books presented are "Farm Appraisal" by W. G. Murray and "Questions and Answers on Real Estate" by Robert W. Semenow. The Northwest realtors plan to present the library two books annually.

Mrs. Etta Pace Wins Philip Wylie Award

By

By Virginia C. Robinson

Mrs. Etta E. Pace, assistant librarian at M.S.C.W. received the coveted Philip Wylie Award at Tallahassee, Florida, May 11th. She was chosen by the Faculty of the Library School of Florida State University as the member of the graduating class of 1958 with the most promise of success in librarianship. The award cited her for "distinguished achievement as evidenced by high scholarship, sincerity, service, leadership, dependability, integrity, and helpfulness to fellow students". A key and a scroll, autographed by Philip Wylie in person, were presented to the winner at a special convocation.

Mrs. Pace, a past president of the M.S.C.W. Alumnae Association, received her Master's degree in library science from Florida State University last summer. Her thesis was a bio-bibliography of Hodding Carter, Mississippi editor and author. She and her family moved to Columbus from Cleveland, Mississippi last September when she became assistant librarian at her Alma Mater.

The M.S.C.W. librarian has been prominent in Mississippi circles as a collegian, a club woman, a civic leader, and a business woman, which enriches her background for librarianship. After graduation from college in 1928, she attended Chicago University and later served as Registrar of Delta State College for eight years. Her many experiences have included leadership in the seed business, garden clubs, recreation centers, women's clubs, county welfare work, UDC, PTA, and church work, on state and local levels. Her personality and knowledge should mean much to Mississippi librarianship.

William Carey College

Mrs. Ruth Duncan arranged two art exhibits in the library recently. A student display of paintings was followed by a one-man show by the well-known artist, Joan Farrar, now with the Associated Artists Studio in New Orleans. Miss Farrar is a graduate of the Chicago Art Institute, and also studied at the Fontainebleau School Fine Arts and at Louisiana State University. She has exhibited in Chicago, New York and New Orleans.

EARLY CATALOGS WANTED

The M.S.C.W. library is anxious to secure two Industrial Institute and College Catalogs: No. 3, 1887-88 and No. 7, 1891-92.

Please note: If you will send in your main listings of wants and exchanges this department will publish them.

Many people are said to be working on the problem of using the marvelous "thinking" calculators to translate foreign languages, but the complexity of the problem is illustrated by this translation made by mechanically selecting synonyms: "The spirit is willing but the flesh is weak," put into Russian, turned into a sentence that would be translated back correctly into "Vodka is ready, but meat's gone bad." from March 16 "Tee-Pee" of the Toledo Public Library, Toledo, Ohio. Quoted in LJ May 1, 1959 P. 1309.

The former Art building at Gulf Park College has been remodeled into an attractive home for the library. Back of the building is a courtyard with banana trees and a fountain. Miss Dorothy Milden says the courtyard will be used as an outdoor reading room to fit in with the college's emphasis on outdoor living and sports, such as swimming, water skiing, fishing and horseback riding.

A part of Green Hall at All Saints' College, Vicksburg, is being converted for the library. The Library Division, State Department of Education, has provided initial blueprints and leading library equipment firms are aiding in planning. The new facilities will increase space $3\frac{1}{2}$ times and make provision for more than 10,000 volumes. At the left Pat Boyd, Brenda Mertins and Suzanne Lotis take an Art Lesson, at the right Carol Carvey, Sue Mertins and Sharon Trapp study Geography.

Valuable examples of early Memphis newspapers are presented to Mrs. Jack Gardner, Northeast Mississippi Junior College Library, by a student, John Bronson, Boonville. These papers were bought in antique and second-hand shops, or found folded in books or in attic trunks.

They include the Daily Argus, April 8, 1862; Memphis Daily Appeal, Aug. 23, 1861, Jan. 25, 1857; and others.

Wood Junior College Receives Collection

Mrs. Edward Lloyd, librarian, was the official delegate to the Mississippi Historical Society's annual meeting Hattiesburg, March sixth and seventh.

Chester W. Quimby, Professor of Religion and Philosophy, exhibited his collection of silhouettes, the product of his own unique hobby. A book by Neillie E. Quimby, "Beauty in black and white," and the tools of the art, added interest to the display.

The library has been fortunate recently in receiving useful gifts of books. Following the visit of Rabbi Adolf Philippsborn of Vicksburg as a speaker on the campus, the Jewish Chautauqua Society of New York presented eighteen volumes relating to Palestine, the Old Testament, and the Hebrews. As a Methodist College, Wood Junior College received its first biannual selection of books from the Abingdom Press, official Methodist publisher. And through the generosity of Dean Herbert Drennon of Mississippi State University, a large group of books rich in the fields of literature and language have been received.

Medical Students Use VA Library

The Veterans Administration Hospital, Calipart, and the University Medical Center, Jackson, are now affiliated with senior medical students undertaking part of their training at the VA., according to Miss Kathryn Hanley. An average of five students rotate every three to six weeks and their course of training with psychiatric patients includes basic reading in the hospital's speciality, neurology and psychiatry. The medical library has a very definite part in the training of the students and participation is reflected in increased circulation.

Public Health Library Changes Quarters

Miss Louise Williams and her staff, the State Department of Health Library, have moved into attractive new quarters in the Felix J. Underwood State Board of Health Building. No one, however, envies them the job they had cutting down more than 20,000 volumes scattered over the Old Capitol to a size that would fit their new home.

Special Libraries Hold Meeting

TRUSTEE OR NUISANCE

By Daniel K. Kelly

Editor's note: It is with great pleasure that we publish the following article by Daniel K. Kelly, trustee, Greenwood-Leflore Public Library, Greenwood. Dan Kelly has been a member of the Greenwood Library board for 12 years and was active in securing the new addition to the Greenwood - Leflore library. He has been a leader for adult discussion groups at the library for several years. Active in MLA, he was chairman of the first committee to award a scholarship.

If a trustee feels he is regarded as a necessary nuisance, put there because the law requires it, not that he is needed, it is his own fault, largely, because he does not perform his duties. Because service on a Library Board is an honorary position with no salary or other compensation, many trustees merely accept the honor, but fail to perform their duties, which, as set forth in the law, are important.

Section 6206 of the Mississippi Code of 1942 places upon the trustees the following duties; (1) adopt by-laws, rules and regulations for their own guidance and for the government of the library, (2) have the supervision, care and custody of all the property of the library, (3) employ a librarian, and on his recommendation, such other assistants as needed, prescribe their duties, fix their compensation, and remove them for a cause, (4) submit annually to the governing body a budget containing estimates for the ensuing year, (5) have exclusive control over the finances of the library, (6) accept such gifts of money or property for library purposes as they deem expedient, (7) on recommendation of the librarian purchase books, periodicals, maps and other supplies for the library, (8) do all other acts necessary for the orderly and efficient management and control of the library.

Now, how many of the trustees of our local libraries perform these duties? How many attend meetings regularly and stay until all business has been transacted? How many trustees patronize the library, and read the books that they buy, or authorize the librarian to buy, or use the services it offers? How many trustees regularly visit the library and familiarize themselves with its operation?

Trustees must be good trustees. They should understand the distinction between policy, which is their responsibility, and administration which is the province of the librarian. Rather than suggesting the appointment of Mrs. Smith because she needs a job, or because the Mayor thinks she should have the job, the trustee should leave the employment of the staff to the librarian's judgment and stand between her and any political pressure that may be placed on her. Since she is responsible for the operation of the library, then she should select personnel.

The librarian selects the books, not the trustees. A trustee might recommend a specific book, and it is good for the trustees to know what books are bought so that they may be more knowledgeable about the library in talking to other people. But knowing what is being bought, should never make trustees censors, although the policies which govern the selection of books to be bought are a real part of the trustees' job.

There are some unwritten laws for trustees as well as the written law. The law provides that the trustees shall fix the compensation of the staff, and prepare a budget of funds needed. But the unwritten law is that the trustees should exert every effort to get the money needed so that proper salaries can be paid, and sufficient books and other supplies may be obtained. The entire board should appear before the governing authorities for budget hearings and should not leave these problems to the librarian alone, although it is her responsibility to provide for them the facts they will need for these meetings.

The trustees should advertise the library, should talk it at clubs, at church and at meetings, and even make speeches to point out the services the library offers.

The trustees must make the staff feel appreciated by telling them of compliments and recognizing outstanding work. To do this the trustee must know what is being done at the library, which means regular visits, not to direct, but to observe. And trustees should always be ready to give specific help and advice at the library, when it is requested.

Many of our libraries are inadequate, poorly housed, understaffed and poorly paid. This should be on the conscience of the trustees in such libraries and they should make strenuous efforts to correct it. Concerted efforts of trustees can build a climate of opinion which will provide proper quarters and increased budgets for more books and improved salaries. Through the joint action of the trustees and an enthusiastic staff, we have increased our circulation from 49,000 to 110,000 annually and provided new services from the library. Other libraries can do this if the trustees are trustees in the true meaning of the word.

The best preparation for the future, is the present well seen to, the last duty well done.

Tact comes as much from goodness of heart as from fineness of taste.

You cannot teach a man anything; you can only help him to find it in himself.

Trustee Talk

Mrs. James Willaims has been appointed reporter by the Hazlehurst Board of Trustees. Another Hazlehurst trustee, Mrs. R. B. Zeller, will give art lectures this July in the library to a group of teen-agers. The course comes from the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York.

Mrs. Horace G. Howell, secretary of the Evans Library Board, Aberdeen, was chosen Club Woman of the year by the Aberdeen Woman's Club. Mrs. Julian Evans, Evans Memorial Library board vice-chairman who constantly adds to the source material and the Mississippi Book Collection, assists in answering many of the historical requests which come to the library.

The Noxubee County Library system has reappointed its Board of Trustees. Chairman, Mrs. Boswell Stevens, was reappointed for five years.

Two Greenwood-Leflore trustees, Mrs. S. G. Mounger and Rev. Jones Hamilton, were recently pictured in a Greenwood newspaper. They were inspecting a new special-order bell, cast in Holland, and received by the Church of Nativity at Greenwood.

"Trustee versus librarian: A Relationship in Tension" is the intriguing title of an article by Jerome Cushman in the May ALA Bulletin. Mr. Cushman makes the point that "tension" properly is a mechanical term and is necessary for the good functioning of a machine—it does not mean "conflict" in his use of the term. Interesting reading for all trustees.

A laugh is worth a hundred groans in any market.
